Students begin Jubilee year

Always hectic, the first few days of fall 2002 featured drops, adds and much anticipation

By Sparrow Estes

Students at Shelton State Community College have more to look forward to than getting an education.

With the celebration of the Shelton State Jubilee, homecoming activities, and a brand-new logo on the horizon, fall semester at Shelton State is sure to be an action-packed thriller.

Throughout the community, people may notice a change in the way Shelton State is being presented. Starting this fall, a branding campaign has begun in an effort to boost recognition of Shelton State by West Alabama. Through the campaign, which surfaced after two years of research, a new logo for the school is being presented through newspaper, radio, television and outdoor advertisement.

Wendy Jones, the new director of public relations and public affairs at Shelton, said the faculty, staff and administration worked with a local marketing firm to present to the community what Shelton is doing and she is excited that the project is getting underway this fall.

Shelton students will have a chance to learn about extra curricular activities on Sept. 10 and Sept. 11 when Phi Theta

Administration urges students to study General Course Guide

By Robert Miles

Shelton State's administration would like all students to pick up a copy of the revised Standard College Policies. You can pick up the list at the front desk when you get your parking decal, or at Shelton's website: www.sheltonstate.edu.

The policy list basically describes the general policies and the rules of college. These policies include: prerequisites, attendance, withdrawals, refund and schedules, misconduct, conduct code, cultural diversity, disability, emergency procedures, security, first aid and lastly transcripts. For the most part, the procedures are basically the same as the previous year, although, the attendance policy has changed.

Courier to sponsor student stage at Jubilee Jam

By Jonathan King

The Shelton State Courier is looking for talented Shelton students to perform in between acts at the Jubilee Jam, Shelton's 50th anniversary party on Sept. 26. In between the sets of headline acts Blake Shelton, The Connection and Son Pie and the Son Spots, there will be a student stage, sponsored by the Courier, showcasing Shelton's own talent.

Jennifer Huggins, a music performance major and winner of her division of the Talent Search in Tuscaloosa, plans on trying out for one of the spots. Zach Hill, a music major as well, has also shown interest in performing with his band, 11:59. The band includes three other Shelton students: Scott Topazi, Micah Hill and Brett Payne.

Glinda Blackshear, the director of the Shelton Singers, expressed her anticipation of the event for performing students.

Sparks Fly at the Fest

OZZFEST, 2002—I had only been at the festival for a few hours and I was already burned to a crisp. By around 2 p.m. I became delirious and stupefied from the sun, and these bloodsuckers at the concession stands wanted three and a half bucks for a bottle of water! After spending 40 dollars on water I felt like a rape victim. They screw you because they can.

To escape the intense heat I went into the "Camel Casbah," a cushy little bar for exclusive Camel smokers. Ah, the sweet aroma of cigarette smoke, highlighted with incense. Even more refreshing were the sexy belly dancers. They were nice and inviting, but not nice enough to get my money. It was nice to have that little breather, but after checking the show schedule, it was time to go back out and catch one of my favorite shred-metal acts, Meshuggah.

Meshuggah comes from a Hebrew word meaning insanity, and that's exactly what this show displayed. Never in all my dysfunctional experiences had I seen such a disorderly group of people. The entire audience became hell bent on destroying everything in sight, including each other.

It had to be 130 degrees in the middle of that half-acre mosh pit, and being sandwiched between two massive, sweaty dudes didn't help that much.

After fighting my way out of the pit, I went back to the casbah for more relief. I positioned myself under one of the fans and rang my shirt out.

I felt a hand slithering its way down my pants and a kiss on the back of my neck. I turned around to see a chick with a shaved head scurrying off, and then...BANG! An explosion went off in my jeans. That nutty dame placed a firecracker in my pants! As if I weren't burned enough!

From that point on it became my sole purpose to hunt her down and pay her back. Never mind the rest of the shows, I was on a mission.

I searched around for the mystery girl for a couple of hours until I stumbled across a few kids who were screwing around with their surplus of firecrackers from the 4th. I paid them for four crackers, fused my bomb together, and proceeded with "Operation: Search and Destroy."

Finally, by 10 p.m., I spotted my unsuspecting victim. She was watching Ozzy Osbourne finish his set. Out of respect for the band I waited until they were done, then I made my move.

I closed in with stealth and precision. Then I quickly stuffed the bomb in her back pocket, gave her a peck on the cheek, and laughed maniacally as the seat of her pants blew up. She recoiled in shock, then turned to me and chuckled.

"Good attack!" she said. "I must admit, I have a soft spot for vindictive guys." As a strange turn of events she took me back to her apartment, and I must admit, contrary to my previous thoughts, I think I may return next year to OzzFest.

On the Best-Seller Shelf...

The Emperor of Ocean Park, marks the debut of Harvard law professor Stephen L. Carter as a novelist. And what a novel it is.

The quiet death of 70-something former federal judge Oliver Garland (who was also a near miss as a Supreme Court nominee) plunges his law professor son Talcott (Tal to his friends) on an investigation that may show the judge didn't die so quietly after all. And the reader is drawn into a riveting ride they won't soon forget. Excellent reading.

Following her death, 14-year-old Susie Salmon watches life continue without her. As the main character in Alice Sebold's The Lonely Bones, Susie sees her family attempt to come to terms with her death. These attempts include her father's search for her killer.

Dave Robicheaux is back. In his latest, Jolie Blon Bouce, James Lee Burke's acclaimed Louisiana detective is on the trail of a killer. Or is it killers? Maybe the worthless Tee Bobby Hulin really isn't the perp in all of these killings. Maybe he's not really that dumb. Or maybe he is, since the most recently deceased is the daughter of a local mob boss.

"Keep Looking Up!"

By Dr. Lee Albritton

An Imaginary Adventure

Now that it is late summer, our very special mode of transportation has returned in the night time sky, the winged horse, Pegasus. Simply look east about an hour after sunset for four bright stars in the shape of a square, and you have found this mythological horse!

The square that the four bright stars of Pegasus make is tipped on one corner relative to the horizon, and in this position resembles a baseball diamond with home plate on the bottom and then first, second, and third base. This square is often referred to as the "great square" of Pegasus and makes finding the constellation very easy.

The third base star is actually in another nearby constellation Andromeda, the beautiful daughter of Queen Cassiopeia and King Cepheus. This star is her head, and her body is a funnel shape of stars to the left of the square.

As our nights start getting cooler in late summer and fall, keep looking up and take an imaginary ride on your own winged horse, Pegasus!

The Shelton State Courier is a "campus newspaper" written and produced with the help of students.

Among other functions, it is intended as a vehicle for student expression, and all students are urged to participate with submissions of written and artistic material.

The college seeks to fulfill the statement for academic freedom in working with the students in the production of this paper:

"The college seeks to provide an atmosphere conducive to open and honest intellectual inquiry in any college forum which is appropriate for dialogue and student participation. The students should feel free to exercise the right to dissent within limits of decorum and good taste."

All publications are subject to review by the Publications Action Group, which has been delegated the responsibility to review all college publications for content and accuracy.

The Courier is an equal opportunity employer and student organization. All students are encouraged to participate.

Kappa hosts "Get on Board Day" from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the atrium. Clubs and organizations present themselves to students and recruit members during the event.

Homecoming at Shelton State has a new twist this year with the addition of "69 South Shows Shelton's Spirit." For the first time, Shelton clubs and organizations will ask Hwy. 69 merchants to show their Shelton spirit by painting their store fronts green.

Homecoming celebration will begin on Nov. 12 with a retirees' luncheon and a Terrific Tuesday concert by the Shelton State Music Dept. at 1 p.m.

Voting for homecoming queen will be throughout the week and the winner will be announced during halftime of the men's basketball game. Applicants may start applying for queen as early as Oct. 1.

A special reception will be held on Nov. 16 from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in honor of former Shelton State students. Among the many treats for the alumni will be special tables for certain clubs, groups and organizations with photographs and other keepsakes from their years at Shelton.

Following the alumni reception, a pep rally will be held to pump up Shelton's spirit. The women's basketball team will play at 5:30 p.m. followed by the men's team at 7:30 p.m.

Assistant Dean of Students Susan Mohun is looking forward to the homecoming events. "We're sorta hoping everybody at the reception will stay for the pep rally and do the 'Shelton Stump' down to the gym," she said.

The Shelton State Jubilee marks the 50th anniversary of the college and will be celebrated over an eight-month period, beginning with a kick-off celebration, the Jubilee Jam, on Sept. 28 from 4:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. at the Martin Campus.

Among many of the activities offered at the celebration is live music with headliners Blake Shelton, The Connection and Son Pie and the Son Spots.

Barbecue will be on the menu for those in attendance and a fireworks display will conclude the night's celebration.

Ticket prices are set for $3 for students and $5 for adults.

The Jubilee Jam marks only the beginning of a year packed full with celebrations. Every month, an event will take place in recognition of Shelton's golden anniversary. Future issues of the Courier will list the events for each month as they approach.

Jones said the Jubilee's events were created and are being made possible with the help of several hundred people. "It is very, very exciting," she said. "I hope the Shelton State students and West Alabama community will be as excited as those of us working on it."

students," Blackshear said, "and it's always good for them to gain exposure aside from the traditional music format (in classrooms)."

Blackshear also said, "The Jubilee is all about the students, and it is important that the students of today are able to participate in celebrating the history of Shelton."

The Jubilee Jam is scheduled on Sept. 26 from 4:30- 10:30 p.m. If you are interested in performing, call the Courier office at 391-2406. Performance slots are limited, so call as soon as possible.

Jenifer Wallace leaves Courier behind and heads to UA

After two years of being an integral part of the Shelton State Courier, Talladega native Jenifer Wallace is taking her experience, knowledge and education to the University.

"We sure are going to miss Jenifer," said Courier publisher Dr. Jim Kenny. "Jenifer's contribution to the paper has been of landmark proportions. She began as the third editor, but became the business manager in her second year and really helped us get organized."

In 2001-02, Wallace took on a second role by overseeing the advertising billing, bookkeeping mailing and other crucial activities of the newspaper.

After learning the excel program in a computer class, Wallace systematically placed all of the paper's accounts on the computer.

"I think we've come of age in the last year with Jenifer's help," Kenny said. "We feel like a real, live grown-up newspaper because of Jenifer's professionalism."

Although Wallace served as the editor of both her high school and college newspapers, she plans to ease out of the publication business for now. She says she found her life's work in accounting and office management. "I plan to work at the University, but not in too responsible a position because I want to concentrate on my academics," Wallace said.

Jenifer Wallace received a special award from Courier publisher Dr. Jim Kenny (R) during an Honor's Day celebration. Wallace's parents, Tommy and Debbie, were also on hand for the presentation.

Soccer creeps up on the casual sports fan.

The Buccaneer fan must be ready to root on the home team in August, and

Head Coach Nellie Christian believes there will be much to root for this year: "This is definitely the most talented and most fit class to step onto Shelton's soccer field," Christian said.

After a grueling week of three-a-days, the girls are ready to settle into the regular season. With the first game quickly approaching (Aug. 28 at home versus Meridian Community College), the team is eager to test their limits.

The 2002 squad is led by sophomore captain Michelle Khalilian and freshman captain Barbie Batey. "Both players bring a tremendous amount leadership and skill to the field. Look for both players to be key members of the attack," Christian said.

Defensively, Shelton will be lead by Huntsville native Dottie Sloan and goalkeeper Teresa Herring. "A solid defensive unit that communicates effectively and keeps the ball out of the net is the goal," Christian said.

"Look for this year to be one of the most exciting yet, as the Shelton State Community College Women's soccer program continues to grow.

"The potential for a great deal of success this season is certainly inside the minds, hearts, and cleats of each player," Christian said.
